Rev in style

The name Tag Heuer conjures two things: sports and watches. But now, there is a third – accessories. The Swiss watch label has produced a collection of lifestyle products for men, like wallets, jackets, bags and cufflinks. Standout pieces include the motor-inspired Vintage jacket ($850) and travel duffel bag ($800) in a worn-out leather patina. Its small leather products come in two collections – the sporty Classic, in nylon, and the classic-sleek Racing, in cowhide leather. For now, this range is only available at Tag Heuer boutiques in Asia.

Chaine reaction

When French brand Celine came up with its debut line of watches, it was only natural it used the Chaine Blason as part of the design. The chain link has become a signature of the house and has been worked into everything, from bags to monogrammed canvas. It now comes as a bracelet watch strap that looks best dangled off the wrist and layered with other trinkets. There's also an edgier leather cuff version. All the timepieces come in quartz movement and are water-resistant to 30m.
